FIGHT WAS A FIASCO

Riley Would Not Battle On Sunday.

DISGUSTING AND DISGRACEFUL

A Drunken Mob Howled All Night on the West Virginia Shore, and the Boat Loaded With People Cruised About in the River—Stop These Affairs.

Although there were any quantity of disgraceful scenes on Saturday night, and the river front was filled with a howling mob, the prize fight did not take place, and the crowd came home disappointed.

Before 11 o'clock the knowing ones began to gather, and it was a typical crowd that assembled. Those who had no desire to pay the 35 cents demanded for round trip tickets on the ferry boat secured all the skiffs they could find, and rowing across the river waited for the pugilists to appear. They had whiskey with them, and bottles were flashing everywhere, the men and boys seeming anxious to fill themselves as full of booze as it was possible to get before the fight started. As the hours passed the crowd was augmented by people from Wellsville and Hancock county, until several hundred lined the shore. At length they became weary with waiting, and some one built a fire, which was a signal for others. The night was cold and the shivering crowd gathered about big blazes that soon sprang up along the beach, and vulgarity and profanity, with whiskey, held the day. As the time passed, and the fighters did not appear the crowd became more noisy, and few scenes more disgusting and disorderly could be imagined. Every minute saw some little fight or disturbance, but the men who wanted to see scientific fighting put an end to all these conflicts, and attempted to keep the drunks from blows. One old fellow became tired of the delay and finding a board was soon prepared to operate a chuck-luck game, but he lost his dice in the uncertain light, and the play was brought to a sudden termination. A boy not yet 20 years old sat down by one of the fires and drawing a pint bottle of whiskey out of his pocket took a drink that would shame the oldest toper in town. Another fellow was sorry that he had not brought his girl along for she could play the guitar, and the time would not hang so heavily, and another wanted to whip all the prize fighters on earth because of the delay. At length the crowd became drunk and tired, and some lay down on the ground to sleep, where they were allowed to snore away their drunken fancies until some of their friends moved them to the other side.

In the meantime Riley had come from Pittsburgh with his friends, but he would not fight. Murray had sent word to his opponent stating that the fight would take place here on Saturday night, which, he thought, the other would understand as meaning Sunday morning, but when Riley arrived and found that such was the arrangement, he refused to go into the ring. However, they went on the ferryboat with a big crowd of sports, but no arrangement could be made. Some of the Pittsburgh man's friends were anxious to have him go in the ring, but he steadily refused, and the crowd was disappointed. Both men made speeches on the boat, and Murray explained that all who wanted to see the fight at Elwood to night could hold their tickets, but others could have the money refunded. Riley said he was not afraid of Murray, and did not want to be understood as backing down, but he would not fight on Sunday. There was a show of bad blood between the men, and the crowd expected to see something interesting right there, but it did not come off. After cruising around in the river for no less than an hour and a half, the boat landed and the crowd went home disappointed. The fight will take place at Elwood to night, and Potts and Murray left to day for that place. A number of local sports will see the contest. It is said that Riley wanted to fight there, and that is the reason why the mill did not come off over the river, where the ring was pitched early on Saturday evening.

While this was going on, scenes that should have attracted the attention of the police were being enacted about the Broadway wharf. A drunken crowd gathered there, and made night hideous. Some attempted to board the ferry boat in skiffs, but a stout man with a dangerous looking club beat them away. A boat filled with Wellsville people upset, and the crowd were drenched. Several other parties had a like experience, but they sustained no other inconvenience than a ducking. The crowd at the wharf made life unbearable for people who wanted to sleep, and such a howling, jeering mob has seldom, if ever, been seen in town. The crowd on the other side, not knowing that the fight was off, stayed until a late hour, and some were there at four on Sunday morning. They kept up the din all of the time, and people living on this side of the river were annoyed beyond endurance.

The fiasco and the disgraceful features connected with it plainly show that East Liverpool must keep the prize fighters outside of the city. This is not the first occurrence of this sort, and it seems almost beyond comprehension that arrests by the score were not made at the wharf. The crowd was decidedly disorderly, and many of them were drunk. There should have been unusual activity on the part of the police, and as many as possible should have been arrested. These scenes are a blot upon the city, a disgrace reflecting upon the town, and it is the duty of the authorities to see that they are not repeated.

Had the fight been started it is stated on good authority today that it would never have been finished for the Hancock county authorities were prepared for the crowd, and would have arrested the outfit. The required number of men were here waiting for the mill to begin, and when the first move was made the principals would have been arrested, and the leaders of the crowd spotted. The local authorities were in the arrangement, and would have lent their every aid. The next time a fight is prepared for this section some one will likely go behind the bars or pay a respectable sum.

MISS NANCY M'INTOSH.

A Beautiful Woman With a Truly Beautiful Voice.

The Pittsburgh Times has the following to say of Miss McIntosh, the talented niece of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Laughlin:

"Pittsburghers will scarcely recognize Nancy McIntosh when she returns to her home in this city for a concert engagement at Carnegie hall, Allegheny, Tuesday evening, October 8. She left Pittsburgh nine years ago a slender, golden-haired girl. Since that time, Pittsburghers who have been fortunate enough to have met her while abroad say she has blossomed into a beautiful woman with a truly beautiful voice. Miss McIntosh went to New York nine years ago in company with her father for a course of study under the great Errani and for three years she pursued her piano studies with Sherwood.

"After this her brother, John McIntosh, fell ill and she nursed him for 18 months in a small Tennessee town and after his death she went abroad. That was five years ago. During the first winter, owing to illness, study was impossible, but the next year she began studying with George Henchel, her debut being made in a few months at one of Chappel's famous 'hops.' Three years ago she met W. S. Gilbert, the librettist, and he engaged her to sing for Sir Arthur Sullivan and D'Oyle Carte in 'Utopia Limited,' a season's contract being signed the same day. Last season she was the prima donna of Mr. Gilbert's latest opera, 'His Excellency.'

"Last Tuesday Miss McIntosh, with her father, who has been her constant companion, sailed for her native country. Her formal American debut will be made at the Broadway theater, New York, October 14, in the role in which she has been so successful in London. Her visit in this city, however, will give Pittsburghers an earlier opportunity to hear her."

IDENTIFYING THE REMAINS.

The Body of Frank Lenz Seen by Searchers.

J. J. Purinton is in receipt of information which says that Sachtleben, the wheelman who is in Armenia looking for Lenz, had started with Rev. W. M. Chambers, a missionary, for Alagherd, where the body of Lenz is buried, and there expected to identify the remains. They have been working hard for four months to obtain this concession, and have only succeeded in convincing the Turkish government that it should be granted them. They expected to reach the place by Wednesday of last week.

KEEP OUT THE CROWD.

The Firemen Will Ask Council For Help.

The firemen who were hampered by the crowd at the Standard fire on Saturday will ask council to provide ropes for the patrol in order that the people can be kept away. The object is to establish lines, make the police keep back the crowds, and give the firemen an opportunity to fight as they should. They say the only confusion on Saturday was caused by the crowds, and if so many had not been there the loss would not have been so great.

HUMMER AFTER KING

The Lisbon Shoe Man Sues the Salem Jeweler.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS

Make Up the Sum Wanted For the Taking Away of a Wife's Affections—Cynthia Bradshaw Sues For $10,000—The First Assignment—Another Damage Case.

Special to News Review.

LISBON, Sept. 30.—The latest and most interesting feature of the Hummer sensation appeared on Saturday evening, when C. W. Hummer, the plaintiff in the divorce action, filed with Clerk King a suit against O. K. Taylor for $15,000. He charges in the petition that the first week in last month, Taylor enticed his wife away from her home, and induced her to go to Salem and Canfield, where she remained in his company for several days. Two weeks later Taylor, he says, came to Lisbon, and continued attentions toward Mrs. Hummer with such persistence that he succeeded in depriving the plaintiff of her love and affection. The first day of the county fair she went away, deserting her husband and their child, and remained less than a week, when she returned with the plaintiff, who had gone to find her. Hummer wants the money because his wife's affections have been alienated, and he thinks Taylor is responsible. It is said that Hummer has damaging letters in his possession, and these having been used in the suit for divorce will do duty as evidence in pushing the last claim. The prominence of the people concerned and the high social position which they occupy increases the great interest manifested in the outcome of the suits.

Cynthia Bradshaw today brought suit against A. C. Bradshaw to recover $10,000 on a promissory note given in 1892. The note was made because the plaintiff turned over to the defendant land of that value, being her interest in the estate of the late Enoch Bradshaw. She says that much of the land has been sold in lots, but she has never received any of the money.

The first assignment for the October term was made public today. Oct. 7, the motion docket will be disposed of. Tuesday—M. Pike versus Rudisill, J. N. McCollough & Sons versus Henry Thorne; J. N. McCollough & Sons versus Thomas Garlick. Wednesday—Gobille Pattern company versus Victor Stove company, G. McGregor versus Joseph Wilkinson, G. Weise versus Clara Thompson, Buckeye Engine company versus John L. Martin, Liverpool versus Della Morris. Thursday—Charles G. Eldin versus Colin McLeary, H. L. Sedam versus R. F. Stewart, Terressa Gross versus J. C. Deldrick, B. F. Thomas versus Industrial Co-operative company. Friday—John McCollough versus Thomas Garlick, J. Allen versus George Firth, B. S. Ambler versus T. R. Lewis, L. Glass versus N. B. Deford.

Harriet Woodburn asked the court to give her $5,000 today because she fell through a coal hole in the pavement on Walnut street in Liverpool last June. The city and Mrs. Della Morris are made defendants in the action, which was suggested in a recent meeting of council.

WILL START SOON.

The Standard Can Not Lose Much Time.

The Standard pottery will not be shutdown because of the fire, as the packing shed and the warehouse are the only parts of the pottery destroyed. They expect to have the mechanical departments at work as soon as the adjusters decide on the exact loss, and a force can be put at work cleaning up the debris. At present it seems as though the loss would reach the neighborhood of $25,000. A temporary warehouse will be built, and the plant started as soon as possible.

In conversation with a reporter this morning President Smith, of the pottery, said that the old warehouse would be torn down, and a three story brick building built in its place. The new structure will be modern in every way.

THAT SEWAGE.

They Still Talk About the Fairmount Home.

The following from Canton throws a little more light on a matter that is as interesting as it seems important: "The question of sewerage for the Fairmount children's home still remains unsettled, although the Columbiana county commissioners were in session with the Stark county board Thursday morning. While expressing a willingness to assist in placing some system of sewerage in the home, the visitors objected to beginning the work this fall. The Stark county board insists the work should be done immediately, as delay jeopardizes the lives of the children at the home. Typhoid fever has appeared at the home through the defective sewer system. The pipes, the Stark board claims, have become corrupt by long usage. They are pipes similar to the kind used in the first Canton water works system and are now almost useless. Columbiana county's share of the cost is two-fifths, as specified in the contract, but they claim they have no money in fund to pay the amount. This matter has been before the board for the past two years, and bids were advertised for and the contract let to an Alliance firm, but Columbiana county commissioners, it is claimed, objected to the firm, as has been previously published, and the work was never done. Prosecuting Attorney Bow was also in consultation with the officials Thursday. It was decided to meet in joint session at the home next Friday, Oct. 5, with Engineer Chapin, of this city, when a plan will probably be decided upon."

SPECIAL SERVICES

At the Churches in the City Yesterday and Last Evening.

The First Presbyterian church was reopened yesterday morning by special services, a large congregation being present. Doctor Lee delivered an eloquent sermon and Mrs. J. C. Thompson sang beautifully. No services were held in the evening because the regulator attached to the electric light was out of order, and it was thought best to have the building in darkness rather than have a new one put in on Sunday.

The First United Presbyterian church was filled yesterday morning, the services being the quarterly review at the Sunday school and a rally day. A special program of essays, recitations and music made the occasion one of the most delightful ever held in the city. Many of the Sunday school scholars appeared to splendid advantage, doing exceptionally well.

The North Side chapel held harvest home services yesterday afternoon, the room being beautifully decorated with fruit and products of the field. Doctor Lee delivered the sermon and a quartet rendered delightful music.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening Doctor Huston preached to one of the largest gatherings he has ever addressed in the city. One of the features of the service was a well rendered solo by Miss Pearl Sebring.

Ollie Crawford, who has been preaching in the West End, left today for Waynesburg, Pa., where he will continue his theological studies.

A FEW DRUNKS.

Police Court Not Flooded With Business.

James Joyce was arrested last night by Officer Whan who called the patrol to Sophia street where he found the man very drunk. Joyce was the center of attraction for a crowd of boys and girls who realized his condition and were having fun. He paid $7.75 to Mayor Gilbert this morning, and was released. Joyce was hurt by the arrest because, he said, it was the first time.

Will Morgan was drunk in the East End on Saturday night and was arrested by Officer Meanor. The man was making an exhibition of himself, and when the patrol was called he was unable to walk. It cost him $8 to learn that such actions were not allowed in this city.

The Sullivan case was postponed in the court of Mayor Gilbert until Friday because of the absence from the city of Attorney Brooks.

Owens, the man who was arrested in the possession of many knives, was purchasing his release today by cleaning city hall. Earl Strauss will likely be taken to probate court for sentence tomorrow.

A PRODUCTIVE COUNTRY.

L. Cope Thinks Alabama is the Right Place to Live.

L. Cope, a well known farmer of Elk Run township, came in this morning from Mobile, where he has been looking after some land he owns near that city. He will return in a month and may reside there permanently. The gentleman likes the country very much, and says it is the most productive country he ever saw, an energetic man being able to raise as much of a crop on three acres as he could raise here on 30. Cattle are cheap, the climate is good, and there are many excellent springs. The people are an indifferent lot, and have little to do with labor beyond supplying their immediate wants. Mr. Cope brought home a quantity of cotton in the pod which he picked just before leaving his plantation.

THE KISSER WAS THERE

He Frightened Two Women at the Buckeye.

THEY RAN AND SCREAMED

The Fellow Who Makes It Dangerous For Women to Walk the Streets at Night Was Out Again—Two Huston Addition Ladies the Victims.

The man who stands in dark places on the streets, and waits for women in order that he may throw his arms about them, was at his old stamping ground last night, and badly frightened two ladies.

They were on their way to their homes in Huston addition, and were passing the Buckeye pottery when the fellow made his appearance. He sprang from a doorway at the Buckeye pottery, but they saw him coming, and judging from the manner in which he rushed toward them, as well as the fact that he said something calculated to make a woman feel uncomfortable, they screamed and ran away. Having a few feet the advantage of the fellow, they succeeded in reaching the new end before he caught them, and there they claimed protection from Tom Smith, the fireman. Seeing that they were well cared for, Smith carried out a systematic search for the fellow, but he had taken the alarm and fled, leaving no trace behind him. The ladies were afraid to go home, and a gentleman, who chanced to be there, saw that they reached their residences in safety. The man should be watched by the police, and given a salty dose for his act.

BURIED YESTERDAY.

The Remains of Miss Ella Salisbury Interred.

The First Methodist Episcopal church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear the last sad words before the remains of Miss Ella Salisbury were consigned to the grave. Doctor Taggart opened the services with prayer and Scriptural reading. Doctor Huston delivered the sermon, and touchingly referred to the Christian character of the deceased and the good she had accomplished, briefly alluding to the happy frame of mind in which she died, a vision of heaven being given her before leaving the earth. The choir rendered several beautiful hymns. The Daughters of Liberty, the Epworth League and the Salvation Army attended the services, and interment was made in Riverview cemetery.

THEY MOVED ON.

A Business Man Did Not Want His Windows Covered.

A knot of half a dozen young men were standing in front of a Market street business house on Saturday night when the proprietor stepped to the door and asked them to move on a few steps. They saw the strength of his argument, and walked away. Upon returning to the store he explained that the men had been standing there for some time, and as he had that window filled with his wares in order that the people might see and buy, he did not think it right for the crowd of loungers to shut off the view and take his trade. It was evident that at least one man wants the police to keep the crowds moving.

A STRIKE RUMOR.

Kilndrawers Said to be Preparing to Ask an Advance.

A rumor was widely circulated this morning that the kilndrawers would strike in a day or two, demanding $1.50 for a day's work instead of the $1.35 they now receive. Although the story was heard all over town no one at the potteries where reporters called knew anything of the matter, and if they did they kept the information to themselves. President Hughes said he knew nothing about a concentrated movement, all over the city for an advance, and had not heard that the men were going out if they did not get it. The story could not be traced to any reliable source, although many people knew of it.

SCARED THE STRANGERS.

Their Buggy Broke on the River Road.

D. C. Crease, a Sewickly man who was driving to Chester where he expected to spend Sunday with relatives, was mad on Saturday night. When the buggy containing himself and family reached a point near the Thompson pottery it broke down, and the occupants were tumbled into the road. There were some screaming and a few shrieks, but no one was hurt, and the mangled remains of the vehicle were gathered up and taken to a repair shop. Crease declared that he would sue the street railway company if he could not settle with them.

Make Up the Sum Wanted For the Taking Away of a Wife's Affections—Cynthia Bradshaw Sues For $10,000—The First Assignment—Another Damage Case.

Special to News Review.

LISBON, Sept. 30.—The latest and most interesting feature of the Hummer sensation appeared on Saturday evening, when C. W. Hummer, the plaintiff in the divorce action, filed with Clerk King a suit against O. K. Taylor for $15,000. He charges in the petition that the first week in last month, Taylor enticed his wife away from her home, and induced her to go to Salem and Canfield, where she remained in his company for several days. Two weeks later Taylor, he says, came to Lisbon, and continued attentions toward Mrs. Hummer with such persistency that he succeeded in depriving the plaintiff of her love and affection. The first day of the county fair she went away, deserting her husband and their child, and remained less than a week, when she returned with the plaintiff, who had gone to find her. Hummer wants the money because his wife's affections have been alienated, and he thinks Taylor is responsible. It is said that Hummer has damaging letters in his possession, and these having been used in the suit for divorce will do duty as evidence in pushing the last claim. The prominence of the people concerned and the high social position which they occupy increases the great interest manifested in the outcome of the suits.

Cynthia Bradshaw today brought suit against A. C. Bradshaw to recover $10,000 on a promissory note given in 1892. The note was made because the plaintiff turned over to the defendant land of that value, being her interest in the estate of the late Enoch Bradshaw. She says that much of the land has been sold in lots, but she has never received any of the money.

The first assignment for the October term was made public today. Oct. 7, the motion docket will be disposed of. Tuesday—M. Pike versus Rudisill, J. N. McCollough & Sons versus Henry Thorn; J. N. McCollough & Sons versus Thomas Garlick. Wednesday—Gobille Pattern company versus Victor Stove company, G. McGregor versus Joseph Wilkinson, G. Weise versus Clara Thompson, Buckeye Engine company versus John I. Martin, Liverpool versus Della Morris. Thursday—Charles G. Eldin versus Colin McLeary, H. L. Sedam versus R. F. Stewart, Terressa Gross versus J. C. Deldrick, B. F. Thomas versus Industrial Co-operative company. Friday—John McCollough versus Thomas Garlick, J. Allen versus George Firth, B. S. Ambler versus T. R. Lewis, L. Glass versus N. B. Deford.

Harriet Woodburn asked the court to give her $5,000 today because she felt through a coal hole in the pavement on Walnut street in Liverpool last June. The city and Mrs. Della Morris are made defendants in the action, which was suggested in a recent meeting of council.

WILL START SOON.

The Standard Can Not Lose Much Time.

The Standard pottery will not be shut down because of the fire, as the packing shed and the warehouse are the only parts of the pottery destroyed. They expect to have the mechanical departments at work as soon as the adjusters decide on the exact loss, and a force can be put at work cleaning up the debris. At present it seems as though the loss would reach the near neighborhood of $25,000. A temporary warehouse will be built, and the plant started as soon as possible.

In conversation with a reporter this morning President Smith, of the pottery, said that the old warehouse would be torn down, and a three story brick building built in its place. The new structure will be modern in every way.

THAT SEWAGE.

They Still Talk About the Fairmount Home.

The following from Canton throws a little more light on a matter that is as interesting as it seems important:

"The question of sewerage for the Fairmount children's home still remains unsettled, although the Columbiana county commissioners were in session with the Stark county board Thursday morning. While expressing a willingness to assist in placing some system of sewerage in the home, the visitors objected to beginning the work this fall. The Stark county board insists the work should be done immediately, as delay jeopardizes the lives of the children at the home. Typhoid fever has appeared at the home through the defective sewer system. The pipes, the Stark board claims, have become corrupt by long usage. They are pipes similar to the kind used in the first Canton water works system and are now almost useless. Columbiana county's share of the cost is two-fifths, as specified in the contract, but they claim they have no money in fund to pay the amount. This matter has been before the board for the past two years, and bids were advertised for and the contract let to an Alliance firm, but Columbiana county commissioners, it is claimed, objected to the firm, as has been previously published, and the work was never done. Prosecuting Attorney Bow was also in consultation with the officials Thursday. It was decided to meet in joint session at the home next Friday, Oct. 5, with Engineer Chapin, of this city, when a plan will probably be decided upon."

SPECIAL SERVICES

At the Churches in the City Yesterday and Last Evening.

The First Presbyterian church was reopened yesterday morning by special services, a large congregation being present. Doctor Lee delivered an eloquent sermon and Mrs. J. C. Thompson sang beautifully. No services were held in the evening because the regulator attached to the electric light was out of order, and it was thought best to have the building in darkness rather than have a new one put in on Sunday.

The First United Presbyterian church was filled yesterday morning, the services being the quarterly review at the Sunday school and a rally day. A special program of essays, recitations and music made the occasion one of the most delightful ever held in the city. Many of the Sunday school scholars appeared to splendid advantage, doing exceptionally well.

The North Side chapel held harvest home services yesterday afternoon, the room being beautifully decorated with fruit and products of the field. Doctor Lee delivered the sermon and a quartet rendered delightful music.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church last evening Doctor Huston preached to one of the largest gatherings he has ever addressed in the city. One of the features of the service was a well rendered solo by Miss Pearl Sebring.

Ollie Crawford, who has been preaching in the West End, left today for Waynesburg, Pa., where he will continue his theological studies.

A FEW DRUNKS.

Police Court Not Flooded With Business.

James Joyce was arrested last night by Officer Whan who called the patrol to Sophia street where he found the man very drunk. Joyce was the center of attraction for a crowd of boys and girls who realized his condition and were having fun. He paid $7.75 to Mayor Gilbert this morning, and was released. Joyce was hurt by the arrest because, he said, it was the first time.

Will Morgan was drunk in the East End on Saturday night and was arrested by Officer Meador. The man was making an exhibition of himself, and when the patrol was called he was unable to walk. It cost him $8 to learn that such actions were not allowed in this city.

The Sullivan case was postponed in the court of Mayor Gilbert until Friday because of the absence from the city of Attorney Brooks.

Owens, the man who was arrested in the possession of many knives, was purchasing his release today by cleaning city hall. Earl Strauss will likely be taken to probate court for sentence tomorrow.

A PRODUCTIVE COUNTRY.

L. Cope Thinks Alabama is the Right Place to Live.

L. Cope, a well known farmer of Elk Run township, came in this morning from Mobile, where he has been looking after some land he owns near that city. He will return in a month and may reside there permanently. The gentleman likes the country very much, and says it is the most productive country he ever saw, an energetic man being able to raise as much of a crop on three acres as he could raise here on 30. Cattle are cheap, the climate is good, and there are many excellent springs. The people are an indifferent lot, and have little to do with labor beyond supplying their immediate wants. Mr. Cope brought home a quantity of cotton in the pod which he picked just before leaving his plantation.

THE KISSER WAS THERE

He Frightened Two Women at the Buckeye.

THEY RAN AND SCREAMED

The Fellow Who Makes It Dangerous For Women to Walk the Streets at Night Was Out Again—Two Huston Addition Ladies the Victims.

The man who stands in dark places on the streets, and waits for women in order that he may throw his arms about them, was at his old stamping ground last night, and badly frightened two ladies.

They were on their way to their homes in Huston addition, and were passing the Buckeye pottery when the fellow made his appearance. He sprang from a doorway at the Buckeye pottery, but they saw him coming, and judging from the manner in which he rushed toward them, as well as the fact that he said something calculated to make a woman feel uncomfortable, they screamed and ran away. Having a few feet the advantage of the fellow, they succeeded in reaching the new end before he caught them, and there they claimed protection from Tom Smith, the fireman. Seeing that they were well cared for, Smith carried out a systematic search for the fellow, but he had taken the alarm and fled, leaving no trace behind him. The ladies were afraid to go home, and a gentleman, who chanced to be there, saw that they reached their residences in safety. The man should be watched by the police, and given a salty dose for his act.

BURIED YESTERDAY.

The Remains of Miss Ella Salisbury Interred.

The First Methodist Episcopal church was crowded yesterday afternoon to hear the last sad words before the remains of Miss Ella Salisbury were consigned to the grave. Doctor Taggart opened the services with prayer and Scriptural reading. Doctor Huston delivered the sermon, and touching referred to the Christian character of the deceased and the good she had accomplished, briefly alluding to the happy frame of mind in which she died, a vision of heaven being given her before leaving the earth. The choir rendered several beautiful hymns. The Daughters of Liberty, the Epworth League and the Salvation Army attended the services, and interment was made in Riverview cemetery.

THEY MOVED ON.

A Business Man Did Not Want His Windows Covered.

A knot of half a dozen young men were standing in front of a Market street business house on Saturday night when the proprietor stepped to the door and asked them to move on a few steps. They saw the strength of his argument, and walked away. Upon returning to the store he explained that the men had been standing there for some time, and as he had that window filled with his wares in order that the people might see and buy, he did not think it right for the crowd of loungers to shut off the view and take his trade. It was evident that at least one man wants the police to keep the crowds moving.

A STRIKE RUMOR.

Kindraders Said to be Preparing to Ask an Advance.

A rumor was widely circulated this morning that the kindraders would strike in a day or two, demanding $1.50 for a day's work instead of the $1.35 they now receive. Although the story was heard all over town no one at the potteries where reporters called knew anything of the matter, and if they did they kept the information to themselves. President Hughes said he knew nothing about a concentrated movement all over the city for an advance, and had not heard that the men were going out if they did not get it. The story could not be traced to any reliable source, although many people knew of it.

SCARED THE STRANGERS.

Their Buggy Broke on the River Road.

D. C. Crease, a Sewickly man who was driving to Chester where he expected to spend Sunday with relatives, was mad on Saturday night. When the buggy containing himself and family reached a point near the Thompson pottery it broke down, and the occupants were tumbled into the road. There were some screaming and a few shrieks, but no one was hurt, and the mangled remains of the vehicle were gathered up and taken to a repair shop. Crease declared that he would sue the street railway company if he could not settle with them.

STRANGE the Democrats were compelled to go to Pittsburg for a marching club to make a show at Columbus.

THE Campbell presidential boom is well started, and all sorts of pretty stories regarding the qualifications and popularity of the ex-governor are flying over the state. But it is confined to Ohio. The leaders of Democracy are not shouting themselves hoarse in an attempt to nominate the Hamilton lawyer for the big office. If he can do the work they want done in Ohio their enthusiasm will end with the counting of the votes in November.

IN A GLASS HOUSE.

Candidate Campbell has the gift of gall, and like all men so possessed can turn his accomplishment to suit his own purpose at any time. On Saturday night in his speech at Columbus he said a number of wicked things about the last Republican legislatures, and dwelt at length upon what he called the salary grab. He thought it was really very wicked for the Republicans to pay so much money out for legislative services, and said they demanded a bonus of $91,000 before they would go home. Such nonsense from a man like Campbell will be taken for what it is worth in Ohio. The people will ask themselves, when they hear what Campbell has said, how many Democrats refused upon the ground of goodness and justice to take this money? How many of them who did receive their pay will go over to Columbus and replace in the treasury the money which their candidate claims was a "bonus"? Faith without works don't go any farther in politics than it does in religion, and people who live in glass houses should never throw stones.

TURN THE TAP.

If indications point for anything the tap on the campaign barrel of Colonel Brice was turned on Saturday at Columbus, and the golden balm, calculated to cure all old sores and dissensions in the Democratic party, began to flow over and through the crowd gathered to see the sport. It was a big night for Columbus, an occasion of merriment and joy. Red fire and tin horns were supplied to all who made application, and the leaders were allowed to ride the best horses money could hire. Who paid the bill? Did the committee that was crying poverty only a few months ago succeed in raising the money by popular subscription, or did the senator put his hand in his pocket? Who saw that Candidate Campbell rode behind four prancing bays, and who was it who paid the musicians and other hired men in line? The money came from some source, and if popular belief and general indication can be relied upon, the senator started the ball to roll by making the display gorgeous if not fervent. Realizing that a Republican plurality of 137,000 must be overcome, the leaders of Democracy have started a show that can not be operated on promises and good words. It requires cash, hard cash, and someone, probably the richest among the lot, is paying the bill.

ENGLAND IS AROUSED.

A Warlike Demonstration Will Be Made Against China.

FOURTEEN SHIPS BEFORE NANKIN.

The Chinese Government Has Failed to Entirely Comply With British Demands. Chinese Merchants Flocking to Shanghai For Safety—Newspaper Comments.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30.—The central government failing in the entire compliance with the British demands, it is understood that a fleet of 14 warships will make a demonstration before Nankin tomorrow or Wednesday. The British demand is that within 14 days an edict must be issued degrading the viceroy of Sze-Chuen, or otherwise the British admiral commanding will act. The wife and family, and the treasurer of the viceroy of Nankin, have been brought to Shanghai for safety. Rich Chinese merchants are coming here from every side seeking shelter.

A London special says: The Standard says regarding the Chinese situation: "The position of the Chinese government is extremely perilous. It has enough on its hands without a quarrel with England. It is too soon to say that the fall of the Manchu dynasty is imminent, but the news of the spread of the Mahommetan insurrection in the province of Kan-Su is alarming. The British demands must be supported by the presence of our fleet in the Yang-Tse-Kiang, if not by the occupation of Nankin. We doubt if the Manchu dynasty could survive such a shock. If the Mohammedans of the west find a leader, and if, at the same time the imperial government is rash enough to defy the western powers, a revolution is inevitable."

The Times dwells upon China being a huge and inert mass, whose friendship is not worth cultivating by feeble concessions to her pretensions and pride. "What we want done," the Times continues, "we must insist upon having done, not by futile representations to Peking, but by going to the spot in question and seeing it done ourselves."

A Foolish Will Contest.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—It is stated that Jessie Potter, the son of Mrs. Charles Lux, will attempt to secure the $4,000,000 estate left by his mother. She left $100,000 to her son and a number of smaller bequests to relatives and charities. The remainder, amounting to over $3,000,000, was left in trust, the income to be paid Jesse Potter during his life. When Potter dies the estate is to be divided between his son and the two of Mrs. Lux's sisters. A clause in the will provides that in case any legate contest the will, he shall forfeit his legacy.

Keeley Needs a Liquor License.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Sept. 30.—The United States Internal revenue officials in this city have received notice from the department in Washington to collect retail liquor licenses from the Keeley institution at the National Soldiers' home at Fort Leavenworth. The ground is taken that liquor is sold to inebriates. The governor of the home refuses to make payment, claiming the government runs the Keeley cure and the home and is, consequently, a partner in the business.

The Deed of a Brute.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 30.—Thomas Kegan is in the Seventeenth ward patrol station charged with one of the most atrocious crimes brought to the notice of the Pittsburg police in years. He abducted Mary Scodice, aged 13, assaulted her three times and then left her alone in a deserted room at midnight. Had it not been for the heroic actions of a young girl friend her fate might have been even worse. Kegan confesses his crime.

THAT TALK WITH NEW.

The Colonel Denies He Spoke as General Harrison's Representative.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—Colonel New, when asked if what he said relative to General Harrison and the presidency was by authority, said: "In conversation about the reports and stories published in newspapers, purporting to say that some friends of General Harrison were making combinations with friends of Mr. McKinley or Mr. Reed, etc., as to the canvass in 1896, a good many assertions of that character appearing lately, I said, upon my authority, and not in any way claiming to speak for or to represent General Harrison that all such stories were false, that he was not seeking the nomination for president and that he would enter into no combination with Mr. McKinley, Mr. Reed or any one else. This was my opinion given only as such. A man who speaks so well for himself as does General Harrison needs no interpreter, and I am not posing as such."

Colonel New was quoted as saying Harrison was not a candidate, neither did the ex-president favor Reed or McKinley. He was supposed to be speaking for General Harrison.

American Workmen Better Off.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Samuel Gompers, ex-president, and P. J. McGuire, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, who left here on Aug. 14 to attend the trade union congress at Cardiff and to make a study of the labor question in European cities have arrived home. As a result of observations Mr. Gompers said: "There is not workman in the world the equal in energy and the possessor of the comforts of life of the American workman. He is superior to the English, French or German workman and is better paid."

The Marlborough Wedding.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Miss Connelley Vanderbilt and the Duke of Marlborough will be married Nov. 14 in Grace church. Bishop Henry C. Potter, D. D., will perform the ceremony, assisted by the rector, Rev. Dr. Huntington. William K. Vanderbilt will give the daughter away at the altar, but whether or not he will appear at the reception which is to follow the ceremony at the residence of Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt is unknown.

Prof. Pasteur Dead.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Prof. Louis Pasteur, the eminent bacteriologist, is dead. The most famous of M. Pasteur's recent achievements, it will be recalled, was his discovery of inoculation for the prevention of hydrophobia, institutions for the use of which are now established in several of the leading cities. The Pasteur institute in Paris is supported by the state, and has been visited for treatment by persons from all parts of the world.

Harmon Won't Allow It.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—If the promoters of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight entertain the opinion that in case the fight is not allowed to come off in Texas they can fight in the Indian Territory, they are certain to be disappointed. Attorney General Harmon says there will be no prizefighting on any territory over which the United States government had jurisdiction.

THE OHIO DEMOCRATS.

Their Campaign Opened at Columbus Saturday Night.

EX-GOVERNOR CAMPBELL SPOKE.

Accused Ohio Leaders of Wanting to Tinker With Present Industrial Prosperity—Doubts the Sincerity of Foraker's Friendship For McKinley.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30.—The Democratic state campaign was opened Saturday night by a parade of 6,000 men and two big meetings in the capital grounds. Fully 10,000 visitors were here. The speakers were: Ex-Governor Campbell, Hon. John B. Peaslee, Dr. J. A. Norton, General E. B. Finley, Hon. John H. Clarke, Hon. L. T. Neal, Hon. Joseph H. Outhwaite and Hon. John D. Follett.

The address of ex-Governor Campbell, the principal speaker, was mainly devoted to state issues and industrial matters. The ex-Governor gave George B. Cox of Cincinnati a severe castigation in his speech, saying that the Zanesville convention was under this man's control and that he would not only be king of Ohio, if Republicans were successful, but the colleague of the honored Sherman in the United States senate. He also accused the two last general assemblies of iniquity and bribery.

He then detailed at length the great evidences of returned prosperity in the United States and then said:

"In the face of all this, the Republican nominee for senator said, in his Springfield speech: 'To begin with, the whole subject of the tariff will have to be revised on protection lines.' We are moved to ask who are now the 'tariff tinkers'? Who now would tear down and destroy the prosperity of the country? Who, for the purpose of temporary partisan advantage, would again unsettle business as they unsettle it by the tariff act of 1890, and throw the country again into an industrial panic? It is not the Republican party of the Union which threatens existing prosperity, because the great leaders outside of the state of Ohio have forever repudiated a return to the McKinley bill, or to any legislation akin to it."

The most farcical thing to him at the Zanesville convention, he said, was the pretended reconciliation between McKinley and Foraker. He said:

"As one gazes at the spectacle upon that stand at Springfield, where ex-Governor Foraker nominated Governor McKinley for president, one is moved to repeat the words found in the 30th chapter of Second Samuel: "'And Joab said to Amasa, 'Art thou in health, my brother?' And Joab took Amasa by the beard with the right hand to kiss him. But Amasa took no heed to the sword that was in Joab's hand; so he smote him therewith in the fifth rib * * and he died.'"

The ex-governor made a strong argument for the vigorous enforcement of the Monroe doctrine.

STRANGE the Democrats were compelled to go to Pittsburg for a marching club to make a show at Columbus.

THE Campbell presidential boom is well started, and all sorts of pretty stories regarding the qualifications and popularity of the ex-governor are flying over the state. But it is confined to Ohio. The leaders of Democracy are not shouting themselves hoarse in an attempt to nominate the Hamilton lawyer for the big office. If he can do the work they want done in Ohio their enthusiasm will end with the counting of the votes in November.

IN A GLASS HOUSE.

Candidate Campbell has the gift of gall, and like all men so possessed can turn his accomplishment to suit his own purpose at any time. On Saturday night in his speech at Columbus
he said any number of wicked things about the last Republican legislatures, and dwelt at length upon what he called the salary grab. He thought it was really very wicked for the Republicans to pay so much money out for legislative services, and said they demanded a bonus of $91,000 before they would go home. Such nonsense from a man like Campbell will be taken for what it is worth in Ohio.
The people will ask themselves, when they hear what Campbell has said,
how many Democrats refused upon the ground of goodness and justice to take this money? How many of them who did receive their pay will go over to Columbus and replace in the treasury the money which their candidate claims was a "bonus"? Faith without works don't go any farther in politics than it does in religion, and people who live in glass houses should never throw stones.

TURN THE TAP.

If indications point for anything the tap on the campaign barrel of Colonel Brice was turned on Saturday at Columbus, and the golden balm, calculated to cure all old sores and disensions in the Democratic party, began to flow over and through the crowd gathered to see the sport. It was a big night for Columbus, an occasion of merriment and joy. Red fire and tin horns were supplied to all who made application, and the leaders were allowed to ride the best horses money could hire. Who paid the bill?
Did the committee that was crying poverty only a few months ago succeed in raising the money by popular subscription, or did the senator put his hand in his pocket? Who saw that Candidate Campbell rode behind four prancing bays, and who was it who paid the musicians and other hired men in line? The money came from some source, and if popular belief and general indication can be relied upon,
the senator started the ball to roll by making the display gorgeous if not fervent. Realizing that a Republican plurality of 137,000 must be overcome, the leaders of Democracy have started a show that can not be operated on promises and good words. It requires cash, hard cash, and someone, probably the richest among the lot, is paying the bill.

A Warlike Demonstration Will Be Made Against China.

FOURTEEN SHIPS BEFORE NANKIN.

The Chinese Government Has Failed to Entirely Comply With British Demands.
Chinese Merchants Flocking to Shanghai For Safety—Newspaper Comments.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30.—The central government failing in the entire compliance with the British demands, it is understood that a fleet of 14 warships will make a demonstration before Nankin tomorrow or Wednesday. The British demand is that within 14 days an edict must be issued degrading the viceroy of Sze-Chuen, or otherwise the British admiral commanding will act. The wife and family, and the treasurer of the viceroys of Nankin, have been brought to Shanghai for safety. Rich Chinese merchants are coming here from every side seeking shelter.

A London special says: The Standard says regarding the Chinese situation: "The position of the Chinese government is extremely perilous. It has enough on its hands without a quarrel with England. It is too soon to say that the fall of the Manchu dynasty is imminent, but the news of the spread of the Mahometan insurrection in the province of Kan-Su is alarming. The British demands must be supported by the presence of our fleet in the Yang-Tse-Kiang, if not by the occupation of Nankin. We doubt if the Machu dynasty could survive such a shock. If the Mohammedans of the west find a leader, and if, at the same time the imperial government is rash enough to defy the western powers, a revolution is inevitable."

The Times dwells upon China being a huge and inert mass, whose friendship is not worth cultivating by feeble concessions to her pretensions and pride. "What we want done," the Times continues, "we must insist upon having done, not by futile representations to Peking, but by going to the spot in question and seeing it done ourselves."

A Foolish Will Contest.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—It is stated that Jessie Potter, the son of Mrs.
Charles Lux, will attempt to secure the $4,000,000 estate left by his mother.
She left $100,000 to her son and a number of smaller bequests to relatives and charities. The remainder, amounting to over $3,000,000, was left in trust, the income to be paid Jesse Potter during his life. When Potter dies the estate is to be divided between his son and two of Mrs. Lux's sisters. A clause in the will provides that in case any legatee contest the will, he shall forfeit his legacy.

Keeley Needs a Liquor License.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Sept. 30.—The United States internal revenue officials in this city have received notice from the department in Washington to collect retail liquor licenses from the Keeley institution at the National Soldiers' home at Fort Leavenworth. The ground is taken that liquor is sold to inebriates. The governor of the home refuses to make payment, claiming the government runs the Keeley cure and the home and is, consequently, a partner in the business.

The Death of a Brute.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 30.—Thomas Kegan is in the Seventeenth ward patrol station charged with one of the most atrocious crimes brought to the notice of the Pittsburgh police in years. He abducted Mary Scofield, aged 13, assaulted her three times and then left her almost lifeless on a deserted road at midnight. Had it not been for the heroic actions of a young girl friend her fate might have been even worse. Kegan confesses his crime.

Weeps Over Her Child's Fate.

TONAWANDA, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Mrs.
Williams, the mother of one of the young girls whom Theodore Durrant is accused of murdering at San Francisco, has been staying here for several days,
the guest of Mr. Stryker of Broad street. She came here to get away from the sensational scenes attending the trial of Durrant. She still broods over her daughter's fate and passes
most of her time weeping.

THAT TALK WITH NEW.

The Colonel Denies He Spoke as General
Harrison's Representative.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—Colonel
New, when asked if what he said relative to General Harrison and the presidency was by authority, said: "In conversation about the reports and stories published in newspapers, purporting to say that some friends of General Harrison were making combinations with friends of Mr. McKinley or Mr. Reed, etc., as to the canvass in 1896, a good many assertions of that character appearing lately, I said, upon my authority, and not in any way claiming to speak for or to represent General Harrison that all such stories were fakes, that he was not seeking the nomination for president and that he would enter into no combination with Mr. McKinley, Mr. Reed or any one else. This was my opinion given only as such. A man who speaks so well for himself as does General Harrison needs no interpreter, and I am not posing as such."

Colonel New was quoted as saying Harrison was not a candidate, neither did the ex-president favor Reed or Mc-Kinley. He was supposed to be speaking for General Harrison.

American Workmen Better Off.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Samuel Gompers, ex-president, and P. J. McGuire, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, who left here on Aug.
14 to attend the trade union congress at Cardiff and to make a study of the labor question in European cities have arrived home. As a result of observations Mr. Gompers said: "There is not workman in the world the equal in energy and the possessor of the comforts of life of the American workman. He is superior to the English, French or German workman and is better paid."

The Mariborough Wedding.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—Miss Consuelo
Vanderbilt and the Duke of Marlborough will be married Nov. 14 in Grace church. Bishop Henry C. Potter, D. D., will perform the ceremony, assisted by the rector, Rev. Dr. Huntington. William K. Vanderbilt will give the daughter away at the altar, but whether or not he will appear at the reception which is to follow the ceremony at the residence of Mrs. W.
K. Vanderbilt is unknown.

Prof. Pasteur Dead.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Prof. Louis Pasteur, the eminent bacteriologist, is dead.
The most famous of M. Pasteur's recent achievements, it will be recalled, was his discovery of inoculation for the prevention of hydrophobia, insitutions for the use of which are now established in several of the leading cities.
The Pasteur institute in Paris is supported by the state, and has been visited for treatment by persons from all parts of the world.

Harrison Won't Allow It.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—If the promoters of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons prizefight entertain the opinion that in case the fight is not allowed to come off in Texas they can fight in the Indian Territory, they are certain to be disappointed. Attorney General Harmon says there will be no prizefighting on any territory over which the United States government had jurisdiction.

Killed Before a Big Crowd.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 30.—While people were going to the county fair,
which was in progress at Cookeville, Putnam county, and while a large crowd was gathered at the crossing of two public roads, Tom and Henry Anderson murdered Isaac D. Jaques of Cumberland county. It was the result of a family feud of five years' duration.

Ezeta In Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 30.—Antonio Ezeta is at Acapulco. He will make the town his headquarters for a literary bureau campaign against President Gutierrez of Salvador. Ezeta is watching for an opportunity to go quietly into the country, when his partisans
there will start a revolution.

Hurt While Sleep Walking.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 30.—Mrs. J.
Jaako, a middle-aged woman, who has just moved into a house on Atlantic avenue, while walking in her sleep fell downstairs, broke one arm, sprained the other, cut her head and sustained several other severe injuries, which may result fatally.

A West Virginian Promoted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Blaine W.
Taylor of West Virginia, chief clerk of the deadletter office, has been appointed superintendent of the division of postoffice supplies, vice J. Edwin Wilson, appointed assistant postmaster of Washington, D. C.

THE OHIO DEMOCRATS.

Their Campaign Opened at Columbus Saturday Night.

EX-GOVERNOR CAMPBELL SPOKE.

Accused Ohio Leaders of Wanting to Tinker With Present Industrial Prosperity—Doubts the Sincerity of Foraker's Friendship For McKinley.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 30.—The Democratic state campaign was opened Saturday night by a parade of 6,000 men and two big meetings in the capital grounds. Fully 10,000 visitors were here. The speakers were: Ex-Governor Campbell, Hon. John B. Peaslee,
Dr. J. A. Norton, General E. B. Finley,
Hon. John H. Clarke, Hon. L. T. Neal,
Hon. Joseph H. Outhwaite and Hon.
John D. Follett.

The address of ex-Governor Campbell, the principal speaker, was mainly devoted to state issues and industrial matters. The ex-Governor gave George B. Cox of Cincinnati a severe castigation in his speech, saying that the Zanesville convention was under this man's control and that he would not only be king of Ohio, if Republicans were successful, but the colleague of the honored Sherman in the United States senate. He also accused the two last general assemblies of iniquity and bribery.

He then detailed at length the great evidences of returned prosperity in the United States and then said:

"In the face of all this, the Republican nominee for senator said, in his Springfield speech: 'To begin with, the whole subject of the tariff will have to be revised on protection lines.' We are moved to ask who are now the tariff tinkers? Who now would tear down and destroy the prosperity of the country? Who, for the purpose of temporary partisan advantage, would again unsettle business as they unsettled it by the tariff act of 1890, and throw the country again into an industrial panic?
It is not the Republican party of the Union which threatens existing prosperity, because the great leaders outside of the state of Ohio have forever repudiated a return to the McKinley bill, or to any legislation akin to it."

The most farcical thing to him at the Zanesville convention, he said, was the pretended reconciliation between McKinley and Foraker. He said:

"As one gazes at the spectacle upon that stand at Springfield, where ex-Governor Foraker nominated Governor McKinley for president, one is moved to repeat the words found in the 20th
chapter of Second Samuel:

"And Joab said to Amasa, 'Art thou in health, my brother?' And Joab took Amasa by the beard with the right hand to kiss him. But Amasa took no heed to the sword that was in Joab's hand; so he smote him therewith in the fifth rib * * and he died."

The ex-governor made a strong argument for the vigorous enforcement of the Monroe doctrine.

Byron F. Richie of Toledo urged the governor to act in accordance with the ardon board's recommendation and commute to eight years the life sentence of William Loersch, who was convicted of murder in the second degree. It is understood that this will be done. It will let Loersch out next April.

The following delegates have been appointed to fill vacancies in the delega-

Cadiz; F. B. McGee, Troy; alternates, D.
L. Pope, Welshfield; N. H. Abough, To-dino.

The Pickaway county commissioners passed resolutions stating that they would not advance money to meet the expenses of the Coit case, which is to begin at Circleville, on change of venue from Fayette

Colonel Coit is acquitted the county will pay all legal costs, and if convicted the state will attend to the matter.

John Lust and Jerome Cave became involved in a quarrel in the latter's saloon, at Circleville, over a game of dice. Cave struck Lust over the head with a bottle.
Lust went home, a distance of six squares,
procured a shotgun, returned to Cave's saloon and shot him in the neck and breast, from the effects of which he will die. Lust was arrested.

by the postmaster at Plattsmouth.

them cashed, securing about $800.

MILES WILL COMMAND.

Says Lamont Has Conveyed the President's Intention to Him.

ANNOUNCEMENT LIKELY TODAY.

General Schofield Formally Retired From Command of the Army at Noon Sunday—The Rank of Lieutenant General Expired With His Retirement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—There is no longer a doubt that Major General Nelson A. Miles is to succeed Lieutenant General Schofield in the office of commander-in-chief of the United States army.

General Miles has made a statement of the fact to your correspondent, saying that he was informed of President Cleveland's determination to appoint him on Friday last by Secretary of War Lamont, whom he met in this city by

special appointment at the Metropolitan club. General Schofield retired from active service at noon Sunday, and it is said that the appointment of General Miles will be announced today, or soon thereafter. The general will go to Washington in a few days to assume the duties of his high position.

This announcement will set at rest the rumors which have agitated army circles during the past year concerning General Schofield's probable successor. While General Miles was the senior major general of the army, and one of the most popular personally with his subordinates, it was reported that he was, for some reason, persona non grata to the president, and that the fact that he had no diploma from West Point might weigh against his chances. General Ruger was the principal rival for the appointment mentioned. There was also an impression in some quarters that the office of general of the army might be left vacant for some time.

The rank of lieutenant general expires with General Schofield's retirement, as it is a grade only created by special acts of congress in recognition of distinguished services. It has been bestowed upon six generals, Washington, Scott, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Schofield.

MAJOR ARMES' FATE.

Secretary Lamont Declines to Say What He Will Do With Him.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Secretary of War Lamont, who has returned to Washington, declines to say what he will do in the case of Major Armes, who was arrested on the order of General Schofield for insubordination. "I have not yet had time," said he, "to give the matter consideration."

Captain Armes, retired, better known as Major Armes, was arrested at his home, Armesfield park, by a file of soldiers, and was taken to the Washington barracks, by order of the acting secretary of war, General Schofield. There has been a personal quarrel of 25 years' standing between General Schofield and Armes. Major Armes was refused an interview with the general and wrote him an insulting letter. He at first attempted to resist arrest. Major Armes was court-martialed for pulling the nose of Governor Beaver of Pennsylvania, at the inauguration of President Harrison.

Japs Getting More Enterprising.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 30.—A Japanese syndicate is soon to put on a steamship line between Japan and some point on the North Pacific coast, and Seattle is making a strong effort to have the American terminus of the line located here. The outward transportation and tonnage from Japan will be sufficient to employ all the ships and steamers the company will put on the line. The Japanese diet will, in October next, conduct a subsidy bill, which has for its object the extension of navigation to foreign countries.

A Female Aeronaut Killed.

MONROVIA, Cal., Sept. 30.—Nellie W. Hagel, the aeronaut, when at the height of 1,000 feet, pulled the rope which cut the parachute loose. She shot downward about 100 feet like a flash. The air caught the parachute and it commenced to open, but it became apparent that she was falling. She came down like a cannonball. She struck on her back, her head coming in contact with the ground first. Her skull was crushed.

BETRAYED BY BRICE.

The Farmers and Workmen of Ohio Sold Out

BY A SPECULATOR FROM WALL STREET.

History of the Infamous Deal—An Account of Brice's Perfidy Based on the Official Records—He Who Runs May Read—The Wool Growers Stabbed in the Interest of Brice.

The Wilson tariff bill as it was sent from the house of representatives to the senate did not provide for any duty on coal, iron ore or wool, but a combination of Brice and Gorman and a few other Democratic senators insisted as a prerequisite for their support of the bill that a duty should be placed on iron ore and coal, and this was done in the senate. Wool, however, was left as the only one of the great productions, miscalled raw materials, without any protection whatever.

The farmers of Ohio will be interested in knowing how their interest was neglected, even betrayed, by Senator Brice and at the November election will see to it that he is not further called to misrepresent them as a United States senator.

In order to present fairly and truthfully to the farmers of Ohio the efforts of the Republican party to allow them some protection on their important industry of wool, and the determination of the Democratic party, and especially Senator Brice, not to permit anything but free wool to pass in the Wilson bill, we have examined the Congressional Record, and from that official document give briefly the facts as they occurred.

On June 15, 1894, the tariff bill was being considered in the senate in committee of the whole, and the wool schedule having been reached, the Republican senators made a stand for some duty on that important article.

The Record.

The first proposition of the Republicans was to insert in the bill the wool provisions of the McKinley law, entire, leaving the duty as it then existed. While the vote on this amendment was being taken Senator Brice announced his pair with Mr. Wolcott, but said: "I transfer my pair with the junior senator from Colorado (Mr. Wolcott) to the junior senator from Wisconsin (Mr. Mitchell), so that the senator from Wyoming (Mr. Carey) and I may vote. I vote 'nay.'" This speech, repeated several times, was the only one Senator Brice made on the wool question during the entire pendency of the bill. The amendment was rejected by the vote of 37 yeas to 29 nays, the Populists joining the Democrats in voting against it, and the Republicans voting solidly for it.

An amendment was then offered to allow a duty about one-third less than the rate fixed by the McKinley law, but this was defeated by the same vote, Mr. Brice repeating his speech and voting nay.

It was then proposed to allow one-half the McKinley rate. On this amendment the Populists united with the Republicans, but it was rejected by the close vote of 35 yeas to 33 nays. Mr. Brice again transferred his pair to vote in the negative. If he had favored even this small duty and voted for it the result would have been a tie.

Senator Sherman, wishing to secure if possible some duty on wool, then offered an amendment to allow 40 per cent on the value of the wool, but this was also rejected by a vote of 35 yeas to 28 nays. Mr. Brice still voting in the negative.

Mr. Sherman then modified his amendment, substituting 30 for 40 per cent. In offering this amendment he called the attention of the Democrats to the fact that even the Walker tariff of 1846, the pride and boast of their party, allowed a duty of 30 per cent on wool, and he made an earnest appeal to the Democratic senators to give the farmers the benefit of at least this small duty, but it was of no avail, the vote being 34 yeas to 29 nays. Mr. Brice still voting nay.

Sherman's Efforts.

On the 31 of July, the consideration of the bill in the committee of the whole having been concluded, it was in the senate and the final vote on its passage was about to be taken. At this stage Mr. Sherman made another effort for a duty on wool. He renewed his amendment to allow 30 per cent and made an earnest appeal in support of it. He said he was in hopes of attracting at least one or two Democratic votes, and thus secure some protection to wool. He called attention to the fact that a large part of the cost of the manufacture of a woolen cloth would get the benefit of a double duty—the duty on the wool and the advantage of free wool. If protection was to be extended only to the manufacturers the great mass of people makers over the country, being farmers or millers, or engaged in various pursuits, would be indifferent to the theory of protection. To promote this feeling was no doubt one object of the free traders in insisting that no duty should be imposed on what they call raw materials.

Brice's Perfidy to Ohio.

Mr. Hoar, in behalf of the manufacturers, denounced the placing of wool on the free list, and called attention to an interview of Senator Brice reported in a newspaper, in which it was stated that Mr. Brice said that the New England senators had very ingeniously contrived to get wool on the free list. Mr. Hoar spoke of the absurd folly of the statement that the men who were responsible for free wool were not Brice and his Democratic friends who every time voted for it, but were the men who voted in solid columns against it. He challenged Mr. Brice to come with a single Democrat to the rescue of Mr. Sherman's amendment, and with the solid Republican vote and the vote of the Populists, who favored a small duty on wool, this thing would be done. But if this was true, would he not be the Democrats to not done he wanted the Democrats to take the responsibility and not go on the

On this question of free wool nothing could shake the solid Democratic column. The senators from Texas were appealed to by telegrams from representative men in the great state to give them some protection, but in vain. Brice was, as has been shown, adamant in his firmness against any such appeal, although Ohio is the greatest wool producing state in the union. According to the statement of the department of agriculture there were in Ohio on Feb. 10, 1893, 4,378,725 sheep, while in Texas the number was 4,334,537, but the value of the sheep in Ohio was more than double those in Texas, being $13,900,263, while those in Texas were valued at $6,924,445.

All that it was necessary for Brice to do was to state his desire for a duty on wool, as he joined Gorman in doing for a duty on iron ore and coal, and this great industry of the state of Ohio would not now be in the languishing condition it finds itself. But so far from doing this was he that he showed his determined hostility to the duty by insisting on recording his vote against it at every opportunity. — Mansfield News.

The Real Saving.

Clerk Alexander C. Caine of the Ohio senate has figured out the saving to the state because of the biennial session plan of legislative sessions over the annual plan, and he says that it is $75,940.32. This is simply the difference in the expenses of running the legislature one year as compared with two.

While a saving of $75,000 every two years is not to be overlooked nor to be underestimated, it is but a beggarly sum to be considered when discussing the real benefits of the biennial plan. The saving of an average of $37,000 a year is a saving of less than 1 mill per capita the state over. This sum is so insignificant that it is not worth considering as an argument for or against biennial sessions.

But there is a saving that is not small and that does benefit the people of the state in a way that is to be felt. Whenever a session of the legislature is over there is a continual appeal for special bills to raise the tax levies of cities and villages and even of whole counties; to bond municipalities and communities for many times, useless things.

At least half of the time of a session of a legislature is occupied with such bills, fathered in most instances by a single member and passed out of deference to his wishes and without any careful consideration.

When the legislature is not in session there comes an end to the hatching of bonded schemes, and municipalities manage to get along on the old tax levies for a while. Once in two years is often enough for the readjustment of tax levies to new needs, and too often for more than one-half of the bonding schemes that show their heads in any session of the legislature.

Charles Kinney rode to Beaver on his wheel yesterday, and because his wheel did not meet his expectations he walked home from Smith's Ferry.

A telegram arrived from Vince Conkle on Saturday night stating that he was all right in Sistersville, and they must not worry. There was no reason given for the cause of his absence.

The Washington correspondent of Sporting Life says that Mercer will be signed by that team next year. His friends here think this will not please him, as he is anxious to get away from the senators.

Patsey King and Charlie Woods started for Steubenville yesterday on a tandem, but when about half way had a break down and were compelled to walk to Wellsville and take the street car for home.

A case for the Humane society was noticed on Sixth street Saturday night. A man and a boy were leading and driving a cow along the street. The cow was being led by a rope with a ring attached to the nose of the animal, which is against the law.

An accident at the light plant caused more darkness on Saturday night, but the damage was soon repaired. A brick addition is being built to the plant, and will be finished this week, giving the company more facilities for serving the public.

The stories that the Phoenix company will establish a telephone exchange in this city when the work down the river is complete will not down, and it was rumored on Saturday that a party of officials had been here on Saturday looking over the city.

An organ grinder on the streets Saturday night was one of the attractions and drew an unusually large crowd. He was more high toned than the customary Italee man, having a horse hitched to his organ and driving around with style and an inimitable expression.

Mr. Martin, the Pittsburg electrician who was offered the management of the local telephone service, decided not to accept, and the place was today taken by Mr. Gilchrist. The gentleman is an old employee of the company, and will doubtless be popular with Liverpool people.

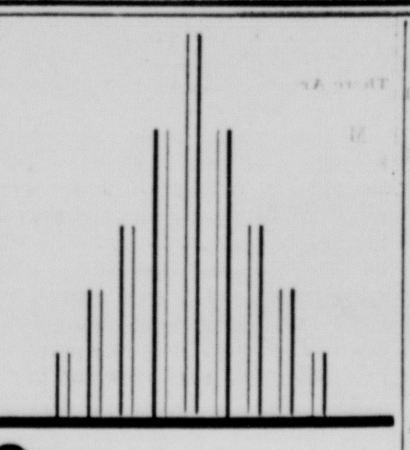

There will be two grand Republican meetings on Oct. 5. In the afternoon at Barnesville, in the evening at Belaire. McKinley and Bushnell will be the orators and a rousing old time meeting is expected. A number of prominent men from this city will attend. The invitation is extended to all to be present.

The Young Men's Christian Association club played a one sided and uninteresting game of ball at the West End park Saturday afternoon. The game resulted in a score of 17 to 10 in favor of the Young Men's Christian Association club, the Columbians being out classed. Batteries, Orr and Finch and Lynch and Chambers.

A woman who boarded one of the trains here on Saturday evening had in her possession a pug dog, and walked boldly into a coach where she made the animal comfortable. When the conductor came in he informed her that it was against the rules, and the dog must go to the baggage car, but the woman demurred. After an argument that attracted the attention of all the passengers the conductor won, and triumphantly carried off the canine.

W. W. Bonnell, of Hubbard, won second prize in the Pittsburg road race on Saturday. This is the rider who beat York in the Lisbon race, and who so excited the Liverpool people that they wanted to bet $100 that York could beat him in any race from 10 to 50 miles. Had York been entered in this race he would certainly have secured a place. He is now in Youngstown. Ed Laughlin, of East End, was also in the race and got a place.

When Doctor Lee was addressing the children at the North Side chapel yesterday afternoon he explained to them that while God made apples their parents bought them, and then to impress the thought asked if there was any other way to get apples. For a moment there was silence, and one little fellow was seen to fidget about in his seat in the front row. At length, when all was silent, he shouted, "Yes, sir, swipe 'em." The answer caused a sensation.

MILES WILL COMMAND.

Says Lamont Has Conveyed the President's Intention to Him.

ANNOUNCEMENT LIKELY TODAY.

General Schofield Formally Retired From Command of the Army at Noon Sunday. The Rank of Lieutenant General Expired With His Retirement.

New York, Sept. 30.—There is no longer a doubt that Major General Nelson A. Miles is to succeed Lieutenant General Schofield in the office of commander-in-chief of the United States army.

General Miles has made a statement of the fact to your correspondent, saying that he was informed of President Cleveland's determination to appoint him on Friday last by Secretary of War Lamont, whom he met in this city by special appointment at the Metropolitan club. General Schofield retired from active service at noon Sunday, and it is said that the appointment of General Miles will be announced today, or soon thereafter. The general will go to Washington in a few days to assume the duties of his high position.

This announcement will set at rest the rumors which have agitated army circles during the past year concerning General Schofield's probable successor. While General Miles was the senior major general of the army, and one of the most popular personally with his subordinates, it was reported that he was, for some reason, persona non grata to the president, and that the fact that he had no diploma from West Point might weigh against his chances. General Ruger was the principal rival for the appointment mentioned. There was also an impression in some quarters that the office of general of the army might be left vacant for some time.

The rank of lieutenant general expires with General Schofield's retirement, as it is a grade only created by special acts of congress in recognition of distinguished services. It has been bestowed upon six generals, Washington, Scott, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan and Schofield.

MAJOR ARMES' FATE.

Secretary Lamont Declines to Say What He Will Do With Him.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Secretary of War Lamont, who has returned to Washington, declines to say what he will do in the case of Major Armes, who was arrested on the order of General Schofield for insubordination. "I have not yet had time," said he, "to give the matter consideration."

Captain Armes, retired, better known as Major Armes, was arrested at his home, Armesleigh park, by a file of soldiers, and was taken to the Washington barracks, by order of the acting secretary of war, General Schofield. There has been a personal quarrel of 35 years' standing between General Schofield and Armes. Major Armes was refused an interview with the general and wrote him an insulting letter. He at first attempted to resist arrest. Major Armes was court-martialed for pulling the nose of Governor Beaver of Pennsylvania, at the inauguration of President Harrison.

Seals Getting More Enterprising.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 30.—A Japanese syndicate is soon to put on a steamship line between Japan and some point on the North Pacific coast, and Seattle is making a strong effort to have the American terminus of the line located here. The outward transportation and tonnage from Japan will be sufficient to employ all the ships and steamers the company will put on the line. The Japanese diet will, in October next consider a subsidy bill, which has for its object the extension of navigation to foreign countries.

A Female Aeronaut Killed.

MENKOVIA, Cal., Sept. 30.—Nellie W. Hagel, the aeronaut, when at the height of 1,000 feet, pulled the rope which cut the parachute loose. She shot downward about 100 feet like a flash. The air caught the parachute and it commenced to open, but it became apparent that she was falling. She came down like a cannonball. She struck on her back, her head coming in contact with the ground first. Her skull was crushed.

BETRAYED BY BRICE.

The Farmers and Workingmen of Ohio Sold Out

BY A SPECULATOR FROM WALL STREET.

History of the Infamous Deal—An Account of Brice's Perfidy Based on the Official Records—He Who Runs May Read—The Wool Growers Stabbed in the Interest of Brice.

The Wilson tariff bill as it was sent from the house of representatives to the senate did not provide for any duty on coal, iron ore or wool, but a combination of Brice and Gorman and a few other Democratic senators insisted as a prerequisite for their support of the bill that a duty should be placed on iron ore and coal, and this was done in the senate. Wool, however, was left as the only one of the great productions, miscalled raw materials, without any protection whatever.

The farmers of Ohio will be interested in knowing how their interest was neglected, even betrayed, by Senator Brice and at the November election will see to it that he is not further called to misrepresent them as a United States senator.

In order to present fairly and truthfully to the farmers of Ohio the efforts of the Republican party to allow them some protection on their important industry of wool, and the determination of the Democratic party, and especially Senator Brice, not to permit anything but free wool to pass in the Wilson bill, we have examined the Congressional Record, and from that official document give briefly the facts as they occurred.

On June 15, 1894, the tariff bill was being considered in the senate in committee of the whole, and the wool schedule having been reached, the Republican senators made a stand for some duty on that important article.

The Record.

The first proposition of the Republicans was to insert in the bill the wool provisions of the McKinley law entire, leaving the duty as it then existed. While the vote on this amendment was being taken Senator Brice announced his pair with Mr. Wolcott, but said: "I transfer my pair with the junior senator from Colorado (Mr. Wolcott) to the junior senator from Wisconsin (Mr. Mitchell), so that the senator from Wyoming (Mr. Carey) and I may vote. I vote 'nay.'" This speech, repeated several times, was the only one Senator Brice made on the wool question during the entire pendency of the bill. The amendment was rejected by the vote of 37 nays to 29 yeas, the Populists joining the Democrats in voting against it, and the Republicans voting solidly for it.

An amendment was then offered to allow a duty about one-third less than the rate fixed by the McKinley law, but this was defeated by the same vote, Mr. Brice repeating his speech and voting nay.

It was then proposed to allow one-half the McKinley rate. On this amendment the Populists united with the Republicans, but it was rejected by the close vote of 35 nays to 33 yeas. Mr. Brice again transferred his pair to vote in the negative. If he had favored even this small duty and voted for it the result would have been a tie.

Senator Sherman, wishing to secure if possible some duty on wool, then offered an amendment to allow 40 per cent on the value of the wool, but this was also rejected by a vote of 35 nays to 28 yeas, Mr. Brice still voting in the negative.

Mr. Sherman then modified his amendment, substituting 30 for 40 per cent. In offering this amendment he called the attention of the Democrats to the fact that even the Walker tariff of 1846, the pride and boast of their party, allowed a duty of 30 per cent on wool, and he made an earnest appeal to the Democratic senators to give the farmers the benefit of at least this small duty, but it was of no avail, the vote being 34 nays to 29 yeas, Mr. Brice still voting nay.

Sherman's Efforts.

On the 31 of July, the consideration of the bill in the committee of the whole having been concluded, it was in the senate and the final vote on its passage was about to be taken. At this stage Mr. Sherman made another effort for a duty on wool. He renewed his amendment to allow 30 per cent and made an earnest appeal in support of it. He said he was in hopes of attracting at least one or two Democratic votes, and thus secure some protection to wool. He called attention to the fact that a large part of the cost of the manufacture of a woolen cloth would get the benefit of a double duty—the duty on his cloth and the advantage of free wool. If protection was to be extended only to the manufacturers the great mass of people all over the country, being farmers or miners, or engaged in various pursuits, would be indifferent to the theory of protection. To promote this feeling was no doubt one object of the free traders in insisting that no duty could be imposed on what they call raw materials.

On this question of free wool nothing could shake the solid Democratic column. The senators from Texas were appealed to by telegrams from representative men in the great state to give them some protection, but in vain. Brice was, as has been shown, adamant in his firmness against any such appeal, although Ohio is the greatest wool producing state in the union. According to the statement of the department of agriculture there were in Ohio on Feb. 10, 1893, 4,378,725 sheep, while in Texas the number was 4,334,537, but the value of the sheep in Ohio was more than double those in Texas, being $13,900,263, while those in Texas were valued at $6,924,445.

All that it was necessary for Brice to do was to state his desire for a duty on wool, as he joined Gorman in doing for a duty on iron ore and coal, and this great industry of the state of Ohio would not now be in the languishing condition it finds itself. But so far from doing this was he that he showed his determined hostility to the duty by insisting on recording his vote against it at every opportunity.—Mansfield News.

The Real Saving.

Clerk Alexander C. Caine of the Ohio senate has figured out the saving to the state because of the biennial session plan of legislative sessions over the annual plan, and he says that it is $75,940.32. This is simply the difference in the expenses of running the legislature one year as compared with two.

While a saving of $75,000 every two years is not to be overlooked nor to be underestimated, it is but a beggarly sum to be considered when discussing the real benefits of the biennial plan. The saving of an average of $37,000 a year is a saving of less than 1 mill per capita the state over. This sum is so insignificant that it is not worth considering as an argument for or against biennial sessions.

But there is a saving that is not small and that does benefit the people of the state in a way that is to be felt. Whenever a session of the legislature is on there is a continual appeal for special bills to raise the tax levies of cities and villages and even of whole counties; for many times, useless things.

At least half of the time of a session of a legislature is occupied with such bills, fathered in most instances by a single member and passed out of deference to his wishes and without any careful consideration.

When the legislature is not in session there comes an end to the hatching of bonded schemes, and municipalities manage to get along on the old tax levies for a while. Once in two years is often enough for the readjustment of tax levies to new needs, and too often for more than one-half of the bonding schemes that show their heads in any session of the legislature.

The Washington correspondent of Sporting Life says that Mercer will be signed by that team next year. His friends here think this will not please him, as he is anxious to get away from the senators.

Patsey King and Charlie Woods started for Steubenville yesterday on a tandem, but when about half way had a break down and were compelled to walk to Wellsville and take the street car for home.

A case for the Humane society was noticed on Sixth street Saturday night. A man and a boy were leading and driving a cow along the street. The cow was being led by a rope with a ring attached to the nose of the animal, which is against the law.

An accident at the light plant caused more darkness on Saturday night, but the damage was soon repaired. A brick addition is being built to the plant, and will be finished this week, giving the company more facilities for serving the public.

The stories that the Phoenix company will establish a telephone exchange in this city when the work down the river is complete will not down, and it was rumored on Saturday that a party of officials had been here on Saturday looking over the city.

An organ grinder on the streets Saturday night was one of the attractions and drew an unusually large crowd. He was more high toned than the customary Italian man, having a horse hitched to his organ and driving around with style and an inimitable expression.

Mr. Martin, the Pittsburg electrician who was offered the management of the local telephone service, decided not to accept, and the place was today taken by Mr. Gilchrist. The gentleman is an old employee of the company, and will doubtless be popular with Liverpool people.

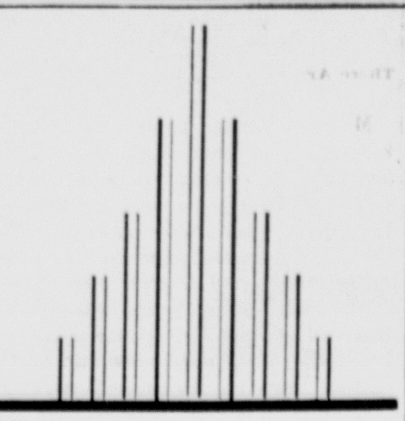

There will be two grand Republican meetings on Oct. 5. In the afternoon at Barnesville, in the evening at Bellaire. McKinley and Russell will be the orators and a rousing old time meeting is expected. A number of prominent men from this city will attend. The invitation is extended to all to be present.

The Young Men's Christian Association club played a one sided and uninteresting game of ball at the West End park Saturday afternoon. The game resulted in a score of 17 to 10 in favor of the Young Men's Christian Association club, the Columbians being out classed. Batteries, Orr and Finch and Lynch and Chambers.

A woman who boarded one of the trains here on Saturday evening had in her possession a pug dog, and walked boldly into a coach where she made the animal comfortable. When the conductor came in he informed her that it was against the rules, and the dog must go to the baggage car, but the woman demurred. After an argument that attracted the attention of all the passengers the conductor won, and triumphantly carried off the canine.

W. W. Bonnell, of Hubbard, won second prize in the Pittsburg road race on Saturday. This is the rider who beat York in the Lisbon race, and who so excited the Liverpool people that they wanted to bet $100 that York could beat him in any race from 10 to 50 miles. Had York been entered in this race he would certainly have secured a place. He is now in Youngstown. Ed Laughlin, of East End, was also in the race and got a place.

When Doctor Lee was addressing the children at the North Side chapel yesterday afternoon he explained to them that while God made apples their parents bought them, and then to impress the thought asked if there was any other way to get apples. For a moment there was silence, and one little fellow was seen to fidget about in his seat in the front row. At length, when all was silent, he shouted, "Yes, sir, swipe 'em." The answer caused a sensation.

Smith Has Gone.

Enoch Smith, the man who suffered the wrath of the Humane society because he whipped his daughter, has disappeared. The authorities let him go when he had told a pitiful story and paid the costs, and were arranging to send the girl to the reformatory at Lancaster as soon as possible. Now both Smith and his daughter have disappeared, and the authorities are at a loss to know what has become of them. They have dropped out of sight.

W. J. Hanley, of Cincinnati, and T. W. Dixon, of Columbus, both in the employ of the Edison General Electric company, were in town today calling on Manager Bostwick, of the light company. They were impressed with Liverpool, and thought it one of the best appearing towns they have seen in many a day. They know of few places in Ohio so well lighted or having a light plant so well equipped.

NAME THEM.

There Are Tragedies in Real Life Which Discount Fiction.

Madame Rumor asserts that a well-known young married woman of East Liverpool has deserted her home and family, and eloped with one whom she loved, not wisely, but too well. The husband bears the reputation of being a gentleman and a good citizen, and the shame and disgrace brought into his home by his guilty partner is causing him untold sorrow and humiliation. Report, apparently well authenticated, states that he has been unremitting in his efforts to locate the guilty woman, but up to the present time she has managed to keep her whereabouts a secret from him. What his earnest hunt means is not known, as he is endeavoring to keep the matter as quiet as possible. Those who know him best, state that it will be decidedly unhealthy for the man in the case, should the justly incensed and outraged husband meet him.

FOUND THE BOYS.

They Were Camping With a Crowd Near Baden.

The Hill boys, two Wellsville youngsters who were sent to the United Presbyterian home in Allegheny and ran away at the first opportunity, causing their friends here and in Wellsville a great deal of trouble, have been located. When they decided to leave the home, they had no means of transportation, except their legs, and they walked to Baden, a station on the Cleveland and Pittsburg not far from Freedom. There they fell in with a camping party and the home was notified. The youngsters will be returned to their aunt in Wellsville.

TO SETTLE AVONDALE.

Council Will Meet in Special Session Tonight.

President Marshall has called a special session of council for this evening at city hall for the purpose of disposing of the Avondale street improvement. The committee is ready to report, and the question will likely be disposed of tonight.

While in Chicago, Mr. Charles L. Kahler, a prominent shoe merchant of Des Moines, Iowa, had quite a serious time of it. He took such a severe cold that he could hardly talk or navigate, but the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured him of his cold so quickly that others at the hotel who had bad colds followed his example and half a dozen persons ordered it from the nearest drug store. They were profuse in their thanks to Mr. Kahler for telling them how to cure a bad cold so quickly. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger, Sixth and West Market street, druggists.

One of the Best.

Henderson's Ideas closed their engagement at the Grand Saturday night with the strongest play in their repertoire, entitled "Nip and Tuck." Although this was the second time they had played it this week they were greeted by a large house. The company is undoubtedly one of the strongest repertoire companies ever seen in our city, and will receive packed houses on their return engagement in January.

Irving W. Larimore, physical director of Young Men's Christian association, Des Moines, Iowa, says he can conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm to athletes, gymnasts, bicyclists, foot ball players and the profession in general for bruises, sprains and dislocation; also for soreness and stiffness of the muscles. When applied before the parts become swollen it will effect a cure in one-half the time usually required. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger, Sixth and West Market streets, druggists.

Humane Society to Meet.

A meeting of the Humane society has been called for Wednesday evening of this week. The business to be transacted is important, and Agent Lloyd wants to see all of the members present. Since its organization the society has done a great deal of work, and plans will be prepared to push the movement even farther than has been the case in the past.

A. M. Bailey, a well known citizen of Eugene, Oregon, says his wife has for years been troubled with chronic diarrhoea and used many remedies with little relief until she tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which has cured her sound and well. Give it a trial and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. Twenty-five and 50-cent bottles for sale by Alvin H. Bulger, Sixth and West Market streets, druggists.

The Farmers' Losses on Sheep.

Statistician Dodge estimated the total number of sheep in the United States in 1894 at 59,626,626. The census of 1890 placed the total number, exclusive of the spring lambs of that year, at 42,192,074. The January report of the department of agriculture for 1893 made the number 47,274,000 in that year, and the September bulletin of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers places the number of sheep on April 1, 1895, after two years of the practical effects of "free wool" agitation and legislation, at 39,241,388 sheep. The number of sheep slaughtered in Chicago alone since Jan. 1, 1895, has been by count 1,829,496. This is not more than a 3 1/2 per cent of the total slaughter of sheep for the period, not more than half of which is offset by the year's production of lambs. It is quite probable that the total decline of sheep to date has been to about 25,000,000 sheep.

The decline in numbers from 47,273,833 in January, 1893, to 42,294,064 in January, 1895, was attended and perhaps caused by a decline in value very much greater—namely, from a value of $125,900,000 in January, 1893, to a value of only $66,700,000 in 1895. In short, the farmers have got to lose one-half the value of their sheep before they will consent to the sacrifice of one-ninth of their number. Thus, if the entire sum of gold loaned by the Rothschild-Belmont-Morgan syndicate to the government should be presented to the farmers out and out it would not more than indemnify them for the loss sustained by them on the principal value of their sheep alone in the two years after Mr. Cleveland took office.

An Important Session.

All the members of the C. C. C. C. are called to meet at the club room tomorrow evening to consider matters of great importance to the organization. Will Taylor, the president, is ill at Mt. Clemens, but has written an important communication, and it is necessary that the club take action at once.

An Obscene Letter.

A letter was found on the street on Saturday afternoon that would bring a young man of this city before the United States court at Cleveland if it ever reached the eyes of an inspector. The letter was filthy, and was written to a Pittsburg girl, whose first name appeared on the sheet.

Frank T. Searight, who has for three years been a member of the editorial staff of the NEWS REVIEW, has taken another position, and will travel for an eastern concern. Mr. Searight has made many friends while doing the duties of a reporter who will regret to see him leave the city.

More Than an Inch Thick.

"Do you know that it was so cold this morning that ice more than an inch thick was seen on the streets?" asked one resident of another this morning.

"Yes, I saw the same thing was the reply, 'but it came from the ice plant.'"

"CELLULOID" COLLARS AND CUFFS are made by covering a linen collar or cuff with "celluloid," thus making them strong, durable and waterproof. When soiled they can be cleaned by simply wiping off with a wet cloth. No other waterproof goods are made with this interlining, consequently no other goods can possibly give satisfaction. Do not forget that every piece of the genuine is stamped as follows:

Insist upon goods so marked and refuse anything else if offered. If your dealer does not keep them you can procure a sample from us direct by enclosing amount and stating size and whether stand-up or turned-down collar is wanted. Collars 25c. each. Cuffs 50c. pair.

So It Goes.

The administration newspapers, in accounting for the adverse foreign trade, lay great stress on the return of foreign securities from Europe as one of the causes of that state of affairs. There is no basis for this position beyond the wish to relieve Mr. Cleveland from the results of his tariff policy and transfer the responsibility to our currency system. As a matter of fact this country has sold and exported to Europe more than $100,000,000 in securities this year and none have come back except government bonds and a few stocks. The reason for these sales for the foreigners was because they had from 16 to 18 per cent profit in the government bonds and what they thought was sufficient profit in the other securities. The foreign trade statement for eight months of this year shows an excess of imports of $36,500,000 as compared with an excess of exports of $44,700,000 under the McKinley bill in the same period of last year.

This makes a foreign bill of $101,000,000 larger than in 1894. The excess of exports of securities has been at least $70,000,000, so that under the Gorman tariff the money requirements of the foreigners have been increased $171,000,000, as compared with last year.

Protecting the British.

The labor department of the British board of trade shows that for the first month after the passage of the Wilson bill by the American congress the number of idle workmen in Great Britain began to decrease, and last month the number of idlers had been reduced 5.30 per cent of the total working population, the smallest known in two years. The tinplate, pottery and woolen mills in Great Britain are running day and night, being taxed to their utmost capacity, while the same industries in the United States are on the verge of bankruptcy.

The consumption of the tin plate in the United States was never so large as at the present time. The malignity shown toward this new American industry by the framers of the Wilson bill nearly killed it. Just as the mills were making a final struggle for life the great rise occurred in the price of steel billets from which are made the black sheets that are tinned. This so increases the cost of making tin in this country that it throws wide open the market for foreign tin. Nothing can save our manufacturers of tin from ruin except a higher protective tariff.

Fish, Little Statesman, Fish! [WITH APOLOGIES TO GROVER.]

Fish, little statesman, fish!
The summer's come and gone;
The mellow fall is here and all
The waves lap softly on.
Sunk in a quiet, undisturbed
Save by the little line's swish,
Enjoy your day while yet you may;
Fish, little statesman, fish!

Fish, little statesman, fish!
The country's in a fix.
But that's no fault of yours, you know;
It's all such tariff's tricks.
We've only bonds to feed us now—
It's not a toothsome dish—
But then, why let it pain our pet?
Fish, little statesman, fish!

Fish, little statesman, fish!
How calmly now you rest!
No anxious care of state would dare
Oppress your peaceful breast.
And though the nation founded quite,
We could not, could not wish
That it annoy your baby joy;
Fish, little statesman, fish!

Thought In Figures.

The total expenditures of the United Kingdom for the year ending March 31, 1894, were £91,302,846. Of this £19,698,698 was raised by customs duties. The expenditures of Canada for the year ending June 30, 1893, were $36,814,063. Of this $20,954,003 was received from customs. The cost of government of the United States for the year ending June 30, 1894, was $367,525,280. Of this $131,818,531 was realized from customs taxes. Thus it seems that free trade England gets a quarter of the money necessary to run its government from tariff taxes, while high protection America realizes from the same source only about one-third of its income. Canada, a dependency of free trade England, gets five-sevenths of its expense money from taxes upon imports.

OHIO REPUBLICANISM.

Sublime In Its Past Victories
the Party Stands Ready

IN ITS UNITY OF PURPOSE TO REPEAT THEM.

Leaders Equally United and Hearty In Their Declaration of the Principles and Purposes of the Party at the Great Meeting With Which the Campaign Opened—A Voice From the East.

Magnificent in its past victories, the Republican party of Ohio stands ready, in its unity of purpose and leadership, to repeat them. The great meeting with which the campaign opened, at which Senator Sherman presided, and Governor McKinley, ex-Governor Foraker and Governor-to-be Bushnell spoke, most effectively refuted the stories of Republican discord with which the Democrats have delighted and deluded themselves. Senator Sherman opened by stating that the party stood pledged by its state convention to elect Asa Bushnell governor, to elect Joseph B. Foraker senator in place of Mr. Brice, and to send a united delegation in favor of the nomination of William McKinley for president. General Bushnell repeated the same declaration. Governor McKinley warmly urged the election of Foraker to the senate, and Foraker demanded a victory "that will inspire Republicans everywhere, and warrant the hope and expectation that next year Ohio will be honored by the selection of Governor McKinley to lead us to a national triumph."

The leaders were equally united and hearty in their declaration of the principles and purposes of the party. Properly each gave special attention to his speech to a separate branch of the subject, but all declared the same policy without reservation or the least want of harmony. All gloried in the growth and prosperity of the country for many years under the Republican policy, and demanded a return to that policy as the only way to restore prosperity in future.

All the speakers repeated the declaration that the Republican party should maintain honest money in future as it had in the past. Governor McKinley showed that the present tariff failed to produce needed revenue; that at no time under the act of 1890 down to the inauguration of Cleveland was the revenue deficient or the gold reserve impaired; that the activity in business is now "chiefly confined to those branches of 'in-lustry which the Democratic party 'was forced to leave with some protection, notably iron and steel'; that 'there were no indications of a return 'to prosperity until after the election 'of 1894 with its Republican victories' that every laborer knows for himself the difference between the wages he now receives and the wages he did receive under Republican laws, and added:

Mr. Brice will not be long in discovering that the farmers of the state of Ohio do not accept the law of the trusts and combinations as the final settlement of this great economic question. This subject can well be left with the intelligent farmers of Ohio. Fortunately, with a majority in the Republican house of the LIVth congress, no further legislation can be had in the direction of free trade for the next two years, and no unfriendly legislation need be feared. None is feared. This is the business man's cup of consolation.

It will be noticed that while all the speakers demanded a return to the Republican policy of full protection, none urged a restoration, as the precise form or measure of protection now required, of the act of 1890 in all its details. Ex-Governor Foraker arraigned Senator Brice for the free wool provision, quoting the declaration of the chairman of the Democratic convention last year, "for the final passage of the wool clause when by one word he could have devoted it, more credit is due to the junior senator from Ohio, Calvin S.

Here Is the Truth.

Mr. B. F. Smith of the Fourth ward, Springfield, writes The State Journal as follows: "As the Democratic press of the state have been using the statement that colored men were refused their dinner in this city on the Republican opening, Sept. 10, I, as a colored voter of this city, deny that the Republicans had anything to do in that matter, and that in every instance where a colored man was refused it was either by a Democrat or a man who was yet has no vote. It is no issue in this city, as the colored people are in line for the entire ticket.—State Journal.

WHY NOT

Does every man, woman and child endeavor to do the best they possibly can for themselves? It is human nature. Just the same reason that when a man or boy needs a new suit of clothes, he strikes for our store. He does.

Smith Has Gone.

Enoch Smith, the man who suffered the wrath of the Humane society because he whipped his daughter, has disappeared. The authorities let him go when he had told a pitiful story and paid the costs, and were arranging to send the girl to the reformatory at Lancaster as soon as possible. Now both Smith and his daughter have disappeared, and the authorities are at a loss to know what has become of them. They have dropped out of sight.

They know of few places in Ohio so well lighted or having a light plant so well equipped.

NAME THEM.

There Are Tragedies in Real Life Which Discount Fiction.

Madame Rumor asserts that a well-known young married woman of East Liverpool has deserted her home and family, and eloped with one whom she loved, not wisely, but too well. The husband bears the reputation of being a gentleman and a good citizen, and the shame and disgrace brought into his household by his guilty partner is causing him untold sorrow and humiliation. Report, apparently well authenticated, states that he has been unremitting in his efforts to locate the guilty woman, but up to the present time she has managed to keep her whereabouts a secret from him. What his earnest hunt means is not known, as he is endeavoring to keep the matter as quiet as possible. Those who know him best, state that it will be decidedly unhealthy for the man in the case, should the justly incensed and outraged husband meet him.

FOUND THE BOYS.

They Were Camping With a Crowd Near Baden.

The Hill boys, two Wellsville youngsters who were sent to the United Presbyterian home in Allegheny and ran away at the first opportunity, causing their friends here and in Wellsville a great deal of trouble, have been located. When they decided to leave the home, they had no means of transportation, except their legs, and they walked to Baden, a station on the Cleveland and Pittsburg not far from Freedom. There they fell in with a camping party and the home was notified. The youngsters will be returned to their aunt in Wellsville.

TO SETTLE AVONDALE.

Council Will Meet In Special Session Tonight.

President Marshall has called a special session of council for this evening at city hall for the purpose of disposing of the Avondale street improvement. The committee is ready to report, and the question will likely be disposed of tonight.

While in Chicago, Mr. Charles L. Kahler, a prominent shoe merchant of Des Moines, Iowa, had quite a serious time of it. He took such a severe cold that he could hardly talk or navigate, but the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured him of his cold so quickly that others at the hotel who had had colds followed his example and half a dozen persons ordered it from the nearest drug store. They were profuse in their thanks to Mr. Kahler for telling them how to cure a bad cold so quickly. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger, Sixth and West Market street, druggists.

One of the Best.

Henderson's Ideals closed their engagement at the Grand Saturday night with the strongest play in their repertoire, entitled "Nip and Tuck." The company is undoubtedly one of the strongest repertoire companies ever seen in our city, and will receive packed houses on their return engagement in January.

Irving W. Larimore, physical director of Young Men's Christian association, Des Moines, Iowa, says he can conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm to athletes, gymnasts, bicyclists, foot ball players and the profession in general for bruises, sprains and dislocation; also for soreness and stiffness of the muscles. When applied before the parts become swollen it will effect a cure in one-half the time usually required. For sale by Alvin H. Bulger, Sixth and West Market streets, druggists.

Humane Society to Meet.

A meeting of the Humane society has been called for Wednesday evening of this week. The business to be transacted is important, and Agent Lloyd wants to see all of the members present. Since its organization the society has done a great deal of work, and plans will be prepared to push the movement even farther than has been the case in the past.

A. M. Bailey, a well known citizen of Eugene, Oregon, says his wife has for years been troubled with chronic diarrhoea and used many remedies with little relief until she tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which has cured her sound and well. Give it a trial and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. Twenty-five and 50-cent bottles for sale by Alvin H. Bulger, Sixth and West Market streets, druggists.

A Mean Day.

The Farmers' Losses on Sheep.

Statistician Dodge estimated the total number of sheep in the United States in 1894 at 59,626,626. The census of 1890 placed the total number, exclusive of the spring lambs of that year, at 42,192,074. The January report of the department of agriculture for 1893 made the number 47,274,000 in that year, and the September bulletin of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers places the number of sheep on April 1, 1895, after two years of the practical effects of "free wool" agitation and legislation, at 33,044,388 sheep. The number of sheep slaughtered in Chicago alone since Jan. 1, 1895, has been by estimate 1,879,496. This is not more than a 2 1/2 per cent of the total slaughter of sheep for the period, not more than half of which is offset by the year's production of lambs. It is quite probable that the total decline of sheep to date has been to about 25,000,000 sheep.

The decline in numbers from 47,273,833 in January, 1893, to 42,294,064 in January, 1895, was attended and perhaps caused by a decline in value very much greater—namely, from a value of $125,900,000 in January, 1893, to a value of only $66,700,000 in 1895. In short, the farmers have got to lose one-half the value of their sheep before they will consent to the sacrifice of one-ninth of their number. Thus, if the entire sum of gold loaned by the Rothschild-Belmont-Morgan syndicate to the government should be presented to the farmers out and out it would no more than indemnify them for the loss sustained by them on the principal value of their sheep alone in the two years after Mr. Cleveland took office.

An Important Session.

All the members of the C. C. C. C. are called to meet at the club room tomorrow evening to consider matters of great importance to the organization. Will Taylor, the president, is ill at Mt. Clemens, but has written an important communication, and it is necessary that the club take action at once.

So It Goes.

The administration newspapers, in accounting for the adverse foreign trade, lay great stress on the return of foreign securities from Europe as one of the causes of that state of affairs. There is no basis for this position beyond the wish to relieve Mr. Cleveland from the results of his tariff policy and transfer the responsibility to our currency system.

As a matter of fact this country has sold and exported to Europe more than $100,000,000 in securities this year and none have come back except government bonds and a few stocks. The reason for these sales by the foreigners was because they had from 16 to 18 per cent. profit in the government bonds and what they thought was sufficient profit in the other securities. The foreign trade statement for eight months of this year shows an excess of imports of $35,500,000 as compared with an excess of exports of $64,700,000 under the McKinley bill in the same period of last year.

This makes a foreign bill of $101,000,000 larger than in 1894. The excess of exports of securities has been at least $70,000,000, so that under the Gorman tariff the money requirements of the foreigners have been increased $171,000,000, as compared with last year.

Protecting the British.

The labor department of the British board of trade shows that for the first month after the passage of the Wilson bill by the American congress the number of idle workmen in Great Britain began to decrease, and last month the number of idlers had been reduced 5.30 per cent of the total working population, the smallest known in two years. The tinplate, pottery and woolen mills in Great Britain are running day and night, being taxed to their utmost capacity, while the same industries in the United States are on the verge of bankruptcy.

The consumption of the tin plate in the United States was never so large as at the present time. The malignity shown toward this new American industry by the framers of the Wilson bill nearly killed it. Just as the mills were making a final struggle for life the great rise occurred in the price of steel billets from which are made the black sheets that are tinne. This so increases the cost of making tin in this country that it throws wide open the market for foreign tin. Nothing can save our manufacturers of tin from ruin except a higher protective tariff.

Fish, Little Statesman, Fish!

[WITH APPOLOGUES TO GROVER.]
Fish, little statesman, fish!
The summer's come and gone;
The mellow fall is here and all
The waves lap softly on
Sunk in a quiet, undisturbed
Sleep by the little line's swish.
Enjoy your day while yet you may;
Fish, little statesman, fish!

Fish, little statesman, fish!
The country's in a fix.
But that's no fault of yours, you know;
It's all high tariff's tricks.
We've only bonds to feed us now—
Save the toothsome dish—
But then, why let it pain our pet?
Fish, little statesman, fish!

Fish, little statesman, fish!
How calmly now you rest!
No anxious care of state would dare
Oppress your peaceful breast.
And though the nation founded quite,
We could not, could not wish
That it annoy your baby joy;
Fish, little statesman, fish!

Thought In Figures.

The total expenditures of the United Kingdom for the year ending March 31, 1894, were $91,302,846. Of this $19,698,698 was raised by customs duties. The expenditures of Canada for the year ending June 30, 1893, were $36,814,063.

Of this $20,954,003 was received from customs. The cost of government of the United States for the year ending June 30, 1894, was $367,525,280. Of this $131,318,531 was realized from customs taxes. Thus it seems that free trade England gets a quarter of the money necessary to run its government from tariff taxes, while high protection America realizes from the same source only about one-third of its income.

Canada, a dependency of free trade England, gets five-sevenths of its expense money from taxes upon imports.

OHIO REPUBLICANISM.

Sublime In Its Past Victories
the Party Stands Ready
IN ITS UNITY OF PURPOSE TO REPEAT THEM.

Leaders Equally United and Hearty In Their Declaration of the Principles and Purposes of the Party at the Great Meeting With Which the Campaign Opened—A Voice From the East.

Magnificent in its past victories, the Republican party of Ohio stands ready, in its unity of purpose and leadership, to repeat them. The great meeting with which the campaign opened, at which Senator Sherman presided, and Governor McKinley, ex-Governor Foraker and Governor-elect Bushnell spoke, most effectively refuted the stories of Republican discord with which the Democrats have delighted and deluded themselves. Senator Sherman opened by stating that the party stood pledged by its state convention to elect Asa Bushnell governor, to elect Joseph B. Foraker senator in place of Mr. Brice, and to send a united delegation in favor of the nomination of William McKinley for president. General Bushnell repeated the same declaration. Governor McKinley warmly urged the election of Foraker to the senate, and Foraker demanded a victory "that will inspire Republicans everywhere, and warrant the hope and expectation that next year Ohio will be honored by the selection of Governor McKinley to lead us to a national triumph."

The leaders were equally united and hearty in their declaration of the principles and purposes of the party. Properly each gave special attention in his speech to a separate branch of the subject, but all declared the same policy without reservation or the least want of harmony. All gloried in the growth and prosperity of the country for many years under the Republican policy, and demanded a return to that policy as the only way to restore prosperity in future.

All the speakers repeated the declaration that the Republican party should maintain honest money in future as it had in the past. Governor McKinley showed that the present tariff failed to produce needed revenue; that at no time under the act of 1890 down to the inauguration of Cleveland was the revenue deficient or the gold reserve impaired; that the activity in business is now "chiefly confined to those branches of industry which the Democratic party was forced to leave with some protection, notably iron and steel;" that "there were no indications of a return to prosperity until after the election of 1894 with its Republican victories;" that every laborer knows for himself the difference between the wages he now receives and the wages he did receive under Republican laws, and added:

Mr. Brice will not be long in discovering that the farmers of the state of Ohio do not accept the law of the trusts and combinations as the final settlement of this great economic question. This subject can well be left with the intelligent farmers of Ohio. Fortunately, with a majority in the Republican house of the LIVth congress, no further legislation can be had in the direction of free trade for the next two years, and no unfriendly legislation need be feared. None is feared. This is the business man's cup of consolation.

It will be noticed that while all the speakers demanded a return to the Republican policy of full protection, none urged a restoration, as the precise form or measure of protection now required, of the act of 1890 in all its details. Ex-Governor Foraker arraigned Senator Brice for the free wool provision, quoting the declaration of the chairman of the Democratic convention last year, "for the final passage of the wool clause when by one word he could have defeated it, more credit is due to the junior senator from Ohio, Calvin S.

Brice, than to any other influence or to all other influences combined." Mr. Foraker commented thus: "The sheep of Ohio are being slaughtered at the rate of more than 500,000 per year, or about 1,500 a day. This is due to the fact that the shrinkage in their value, and in the value of their wool, is so great that sheep raising and wool growing have become unprofitable. It means the loss of millions of dollars to the farmers of this state without any compensating benefit whatever." And as to the boast that Senator Brice will carry the legislature if it costs him every cent he is worth, Mr. Foraker said: "The people of Ohio owe it to themselves to present the imputation that one of the highest offices in their power to bestow is to be sold in the market like a chattel."

With Republicans thus thoroughly and heartily united there should be no doubt whatever of an overwhelming victory in Ohio. The effect of such a victory would be great in other states where Republicans have harder battles to fight; and the people of Ohio, eager to secure the foremost place in the allotment of honors next year, can doubtless be trusted this year not to fall behind their best endeavors for Republican principles.—New York Tribune (editorial).

Common Sense Talk.

This is a great nation. Let us put its affairs in the hands of the party capable of managing them the most successfully and for the greatest prosperity of the people. Our Democratic friends mean well, I am sure, and think that they and their party can manage affairs just as well as any one else, but that it is a mistake. The record is against them. They have tried it and not been successful, and therefore, as a matter of business, they should be retired and the management placed in the hands of the Republicans. It may be said of political parties as of individuals, "By their works shall ye know them." The work of the Democratic party has been more in the nature of tearing down than building up, and the people are now as determined to have a change as they were in 1892.

This does not apply to our own state of Ohio, for her people spoke two years ago and again last year with emphasis, as to which party they desired to have control her affairs, and I hope their expression this fall will be a confirmation of their action of 1893 and 1894. If I did not honestly believe that the election of the Republican ticket next November would be for the best interests, prosperity and glory of the whole people of the state, I would not ask you to vote it, but believing its election will bring such results, I ask you to give it your hearty support, not only Republicans but all others having the best interests of our state and its people at heart, to join us in giving a rousing majority for the whole ticket, state and legislative, thus insuring the election of our distinguished fellow citizen, Governor McKinley, president of the United States next year, and in the meantime send that gallant soldier and statesman, Joseph Benson Foraker, to the United States senate.—General Bushnell at Springfield, Sept. 10.

Here is the Truth.

Mr. B. F. Smith of the Fourth ward, Springfield, writes The State Journal as follows: "As the Democratic press of the state have been using the statement that colored men were refused their dinner in this city on the Republican opening, Sept. 10, I, as a colored voter of this city, deny that the Republicans had anything to do in that matter, and that in every instance where a colored man was refused it was either by a Democrat or a man who as yet has no vote. It is no issue in this city, as the colored people are in line for the entire ticket.—State Journal.
